Business Survey

CMAI'S PRE-FESTIVE SEASON SURVEY INDICATES WEAK SENTIMENTS FOR CLOTHING DEMAND

In its Annual Survey of members carried out by CMAI to get a sense of what to expect from the Retail market before the Festive Season, the overall sentiments continue to remain weak.

Notably, as many as 63% of the respondents are expecting to see the same or lower sales of Clothing and Apparel as compared to the last year. Of these, nearly 25% are expecting the sales to be as low as 75% of the previous year.

Whilst the reasons for such low expectancy varied, the biggest factor impacting the low sentiments appeared to be the significant shift in larger wallet share of the consumer spending moving towards other avenues of lifestyle – with 35% of the respondents attributing their low expectations to this factor. Another sizeable portion of 24% respondents attributed a slowing Economy and Inflation to be the top challenges at the moment.

Amongst the Apparel categories, Men's wear seems to have been the worst affected, with a 75% of the respondents expecting Women's wear and Kids wear to perform better in terms of demand during this Festive Season.

Another interesting insight emerging from the Survey was that an overwhelming 75% of the respondents felt that the mid-priced Brands would do the best during the season, whilst only 18% felt that low-priced brands would do better – clearly indicating the Indian Consumer's growing Maturity in not just considering price points, but also inclination to pay a premium for quality. Not surprisingly, 52% of the respondents anticipate demand for Indian wear to perform well followed by Casual Wear whereas Formal wear seems to be out of favor.

Furthermore, the survey shows an encouraging 75.5% preference for offline retail against 24.5% for online retail despite growing penetration of e-commerce industry in India.

It was also felt that while showcasing the collection through a Fashion Show the Brands will invite members from Industry to bring in the awareness about SOFT.

This collaboration could enhance both Internship and Placement opportunities, giving students practical insights and skills. This should lead to CMAI Members getting Designers from SOFT through proper Coordination and Communication through their Placement cells. To begin with short duration Courses of One or Two days to be organised either Physical or Online for budding Entrepreneurs of CMAI. It was suggested that this activity can be first initiated for the Members of CMAI from Pune since SOFT is based at Pune.

Mumbai: The Clothing Manufacturers Association of India (CMAI), the country's leading association representing the garment industry, has signed two strategic Memorandums of Understanding (MOUs) with the Noida Apparel Export Cluster (NAEC) and the Garment Exporters Association of Rajasthan (GEAR).

The agreements, signed yesterday in Mumbai, aim to propel garment manufacturers from Uttar Pradesh and Rajasthan to new heights by leveraging mutual strengths and expanding opportunities in both domestic and international markets.

The primary objective of these MOUs is to mutually promote and support trade interests, facilitate joint programs, enhance knowledge sharing, and encourage participation in trade fairs.

Additionally, the collaborations will focus on unified industry representation to both Central and State Governments, advocating for the interests of garment manufacturers in the regions.

Mr. Rajesh Masand, President of CMAI, said, "This decisive cooperation will provide UP garment manufacturers, especially those from the Noida cluster, access to CMAI's extensive network of buyers and retailers across India.

It will also bolster CMAI's efforts to engage with the garment industry in UP and extend our services to local manufacturers."

Mr. Lalit Thukral, President of NAEC, remarked, "Aligning with CMAI, India's largest association for the garment industry, is a significant step forward for the growth of UP's garment industry.

This collaboration presents immense benefits to our exporter members."

Earlier in the day, GEAR renewed its MOU with CMAI, further solidifying a partnership that has already yielded significant advantages for garment exporters in Rajasthan.

Zakir Hussain, President of GEAR, commented, "Our past association with CMAI has provided tremendous benefits to our members in Rajasthan.

We look forward to strengthening this bond by expanding our scope and access to more trade fairs, knowledge forums, and other industry-driven activities."

Mr. Rohit Munjal, Vice President of CMAI, expressed optimism about the growing demand for Rajasthan-made ensembles, stating, "This renewed collaboration will provide more opportunities for manufacturers from Rajasthan to showcase their unique products and design sensibilities, boosting their presence in the domestic retail market."

These strategic alliances with NAEC and GEAR underscore CMAI's commitment to supporting garment manufacturers across India, helping them navigate new frontiers and achieve sustained growth in a competitive market landscape.

Collaboration among stakeholders is imperative for better returns: Cem Altan - IAF President

By Rakesh Kumar & Mohit Sharma

SAMARKAND, SEPT. 11— A significant portion of our industry remains trapped in a cycle of low prices and high volumes. In an attempt to offset markdowns and lost sales, we often resort to purchasing in large quantities, which drives down costs but can also lead to overproduction and reduced profit margins. This system is inefficient. It drains resources on the retail end, leaving inadequate funds for the manufacturing side, where investment is crucial for solving the industry's core problems.

Yet, there is hope. There are examples where manufacturers have broken free from the low-price trap. By taking the lead and collaborating closely with fabric suppliers and clients, these manufacturers can offer products at higher prices because they promise better returns. This collaboration creates the necessary flexibility in production to respond to consumer demand effectively. The above observation and opinion were made by Mr. Cem Altan, President, International Apparel Federation (IAF) at the International Textile Manufacturers' Federation (ITMF) Annual Conference and IAF World Fashion Convention on 'Innovation, Cooperation & Regulation - Driver of Textile & Apparel Industry', held here.

Mr. Altan noted that digitalization offers another pathway out of the low-price trap by enhancing supply chain flexibility, speeding up time to market, and enabling the creation of better products at lower costs. However, some brands and retailers struggle to maintain momentum and are even retreating from digitalization. It is time for manufacturers to step up and take the initiative. Digitalization not only requires but also offers opportunities for deeper collaboration between apparel and fabric suppliers, he pointed out.

To meet the needs of end-users and create the products they desire, Mr. Altan emphasised that all stakeholders must embrace industry transformation. A significant part of this transformation should be led by manufacturers, but they need the necessary capital to drive these changes. While some funds are tied up in inventories and markdowns, it is not enough. We need to attract additional investment from external sources, including investors, donors, and consumers, IAF President stressed.

To secure this investment, Mr. Altan suggested that the industry must present a united front as apparel and textile manufacturers. Take decarbonization, for instance. The most effective results will come from comprehensive plans developed in collaboration with garment and textile manufacturers, supported by government and endorsed by brands and retailers. Such coordinated efforts can create significant impact, attracting external investment, he pointed out.

Stating that while meeting sustainability standards can be costly, Mr. Altan advocated that it was crucial that the financial burden is shared equitably among all stakeholders, including end consumers. Properly enforced rules, especially those related to due diligence, can help distribute costs fairly.

However, poorly enforced regulations pose a risk; they may inadvertently reward those who bypass them, creating market conditions that undermine sustainability efforts. If enforcement is lacking, we must stand united and vocal against such practices, he said. IAF President emphasized

इंदौर के रेडीमेड गारमेंट निर्माताओं के लिए यह खुशी की खबर है कि रेडीमेड गारमेंट के राष्ट्रीय स्तर के व्यवसाय में इंदौर के हितों की चिंता करने वाले श्री संतोष कटारिया क्लॉथिंग मैनेजमेंट एंजिनियरिंग एसोसिएशन ऑफ इंडिया मुंबई के अध्यक्ष चुने गए हैं। निश्चित तौर पर कटारिया का अध्यक्ष पद पर निर्वाचन इंदौर के रेडीमेड गारमेंट की प्रगति में बहुत सहायक सिद्ध होगा। इंदौर रेडीमेड वस्त्र निर्माता संघ श्री कटारिया को उनके निर्वाचन पर बधाई देता है।
